CURE DISCOVERED FOR MENINGITIS

Serum Injunction Into Cerebro-spinal Membrane the Remedy Advocated by Rockefeler Institute Director.

New York, Nov. 1.—At the concluding session of the annual conference of the sanitary officers of the state of New York in Carnegie Lyceum today Dr. Simon Flexner, director of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, declared that as a result of many experiments with serum he was able to say that epidemics of spinal meningitis can now be controlled.

This, he said, can be done by putting the serum in the cerebro-spinal membrane, thus getting it at the seat of the disease. Efforts to get the serum into the blood of infected persons, he said, had failed.

"It has taken a large sum of money and a long time to perfect this cure," he said. "This is the first time I have announced it, as only recently have I demonstrated to my own satisfaction that the serum I have prepared will do what I claim for it."

"With the application of this new form of treatment that we have discovered influenza meningitis in the child will not be one-tenth as dangerous as it was before the discovery of this new serum and method of treating such a disease."

DO YOU LIKE BREAD?
Most people do. That is, really good, reliable bread. Bread that is white and sweet, with that luscious, nutty flavor so delightful to the taste. Bread that is thoroughly healthful, digestible and valuable for its nutritional qualities. If so, then order a loaf of Creston bread served at your table. You soon will regret it as an old and steadfast friend, when it comes from the

NEW GUN WANTED FOR AERIAL USE

Rumored That Army and Navy Experts Vie With Each Other in Producing Weapon for Warfare Among Clouds.

Washington, Oct. 31.—Recent publications hinting at the development of a remarkable aeroplane gun have brought out the fact that a strong rivalry exists between the army and the navy ordnance bureaus in designing and constructing guns calculated to solve problems introduced in land and sea warfare by the adoption of the aeroplane on land and the hydro-aeroplane on the sea as means of offense.

It appears that the two bureaus are proceeding on precisely opposite lines, the army trying to develop a gun that can be trained with lightning-like rapidity upon the swiftly moving aeroplane with the purpose of bringing it to earth, and the navy striving to equip its hydro-aeroplane with guns which will shower destructive missiles upon fortifications or bodies of troops below.

Both branches of the service are conducting their experiments with great secrecy, but it appears that the navy, at least will soon be obliged to test its gun in the open, though even then efforts will be made to prevent unauthorized persons from approaching the weapon near enough to observe its peculiarities.

The navy gun is the invention of Commander Celand Davis, who also invented the canned torpedo which was recently been tried with surprisingly successful results. It is understood that it was the success of the remarkably light vanadium steel incendiary gun in the torpedo which convinced Commander Davis that he could build a serviceable gun light enough to be carried by an aeroplane and discharge a 6-inch incendiary shell which would almost annihilate a company of men in trenches below. Ingenious devices have been adopted to take up the recoil of this weapon without injury to the hydro-aeroplane, which could carry at least a half dozen rounds of ammunition.

The army weapon designed for hitting an aeroplane is of much simpler construction, the departure from ordinary practice consisting in a peculiar carriage capable of directing the gun at every point between the horizon and the zenith without injurious recoil; and in a method of automatically adjusting the sights to compensate for the changes in the trajectory of the shot incident to changes in elevation of the gun.

"I suffered habitually from constipation. Doan's Regulets relieved and strengthened the bowels, so that they have been regular ever since."—A. E. Davis, grocer, Sulphur Springs, Texas.

The couple enjoyed first class travelling accommodations as far as Kansas City and there the bridegroom's funds gave out. The bride was forced to have her hair bobbed, she says, after her boy's suit of clothes had been provided for her, and then bride and bridegroom became fast-fledged tramps. They rode in box cars to Spie, Ok., and then on to Fort Smith and Van Buren, Ark. Failure to get box car reservations at Van Buren, they walked back to Sallisaw, Ok., where the young wife was arrested for vagrancy in male attire. Last summer, according to the petition, she participated in various walking stunts, extending as far north as Lincoln, Neb. They slept in fence corners and haystacks, and begged for their food at farmhouses. After three months of this life, Mrs. Harper reached the conclusion that she had had enough of traveling and separated from her husband, making her way back to St. Joseph from Eagle, Neb., as best she could.

Mrs. Harper says that when her father was dead, and cried, Harper beat her. She has returned to school and says she wishes to devote the remainder of her life to a business career.
